Riddle me this, D.A. reader! There have been three filmed versions of Batman featuring the Riddler: the 1966 movie Batman, the 1960s "Batman" TV series and the 1995 movie Batman Forever. Which of these actors played the Riddler on the TV show? (Turn the page upside down to see the answer.) Once you've puzzled that out, check out the rest of this issue. We've got even more inside info on Batman Forever, plus 101 ways to make this your coolest summer ever!

Adventure On!

Phyllis

ANSWER: OK, it was kind of a trick question—what else do you expect from the Riddler? Both Frank Gorshin (middle) and John Astin (bottom) played the Riddler in the TV series. Gorshin had the role from 1966 to 1968, but Astin briefly replaced him in 1967. (Gorshin also played the Riddler in the 1966 film Batman. And we don't need to tell you that Jim Carrey [top] appears in 1995's Batman Forever.)

Go Fish

My family took a trip to upstate New York. It was awesome—I got to fish and play a lot. We caught only one fish and put it back. After lunch we went to a nearby stream and tried to make a bridge, but it didn't work. My brother Duke fell in, so we all went in and floated downstream. I plan on going back next year!

Rough Rider

Biking rules! I really like to ride on rough terrain, but because I live in a suburb, there isn't much terrain that isn't paved and flat. There is one bike route that's 3 miles long, and there's no way to get off the route and onto the main road. It's the best trail I've ever seen, except for one in the Sierra Nevada Mountains. I went there with an instructor, and we biked to a creek. The trail was unpaved, and two of the seven kids on the trip got flat tires.

slang patrol

slang and games

Sometimes you can sound like Joe Action without leaving your couch! Toss around these fun phrases even when you don't feel like playing at all:

Channel Surfing. To make constant use of your remote control. "Yeah, I caught the last few minutes of 'Boy Meets World' last night while I was channel surfing."

Phone Tag. When you call someone back, and they're not there; then they call you back, but you're not there; so then you call them back, but they're not there... "I haven't been able to get ahold of Joey. We're playing phone tag."

Score! Exclamation used when anything goes right. "Your cousin got us free tickets to the water park? Score!"

Batting a Thousand. When everything goes right. "An A in math, a new dog, your little brother didn't rat on you about the incident—you're batting a thousand!"

Re-cycling

If you happen to be a cycling recycler—you know, you like riding your bike and recycling—Huffy's got the bike for you! The Huffy Metaloid bicycles feature the first-ever aluminum frames made from 100 percent recycled aluminum. You've got three models to choose from: Metaloid XL, FX and XS. If you're thinking that the last thing you want is a bike that looks like an old soda can, just take a look at this pic—pretty cool, huh? The bicycles ride into bike stores this July.

Your Guide to TV, Movies, Music and More

movies

You've heard about Nessie, the legendary Loch Ness Monster. Now meet Orky, the lake monster in Magic in the Water. Although most of the lakeside residents don't believe in Orky, 10-year-old Ashley (played by newcomer Sarah Wayne) knows the creature really does exist. Orky becomes her friend, and together they share a summer adventure and a love of Oreos!

Joshua Jackson plays Ashley's brother, Josh. He's used to working with water animals—he played Charlie in Mighty Ducks and D2.

Join the Congo line! It's not a dance; it's a thriller. Deep in the heart of Africa lies the Congo—132,046 square miles of damp, dark forest. An expedition team is sent to find a diamond mine in the lost city of Zinj. The members of the team are killed and communications specialist Karen Ross (Laura Linney) is sent to investigate. She joins an expedition with Peter Elliot (Dylan Walsh), who is traveling to the Congo to return Amy, a celebrity gorilla who can sign 620 words—and even speak! We bet you're gonna go bananas when you see and hear it!

You'll go ape for *Congo!

Hammin' It Up!

D.A. wanted to interview Gordy the pig about his new movie, Gordy. But he couldn't get his snout out of his trough long enough to talk to us, and besides, he said he didn't want to hog the spotlight! He suggested we chat with his co-star in the movie, Kristy Young, 14, who's also his new owner! Yup, Kristy loved Gordy so much that after the movie was over, she got to keep him. Now, how'd she pull that off? She called us up to explain.

Kristy and Gordy hog the spotlight.

D.A.: How did you get the part of Jinnie Sue?

K.Y.: I flew out to California to audition for pilots for new TV shows, but before I knew it, I got an audition for Gordy. In the movie, Jinnie Sue is in a band with her dad, so they also had me sing two country songs! It was my first audition ever; it was pretty weird!

D.A.: You've got an album coming out in June, don't you?

K.Y.: It'll be a country album. I'm also on the movie sound track.

D.A.: So you liked working with Gordy so much that you kept him! How did you convince your mom?

K.Y.: Well, my mom and dad actually said no. Then we went on a beach trip, and when we returned to our house, Gordy was there! The animal trainers wanted to find a nice home for him, so they left him at our house. But Gordy got so big, about 400 pounds, he went through three doghouses and uprooted the fence! So now he lives at this place near my house called Backyard Pets where they host birthday parties.

D.A.: When you were filming, could you tell when Gordy was not in a good mood?

K.Y.: Yeah, he'd make it hard for us. When the director yelled, "Cut!" he'd do something wrong. Like, he'd do the opposite of what he was supposed to do!

—Liz Smith

Yabba Dabba 'TOONS!

Fred Flintstone and Dino have some new pals to hang with these days. If you watch the Cartoon Network's "World Premiere Toons," maybe you've seen some of them. There's a duck called Yuckie, a boy scientist named Dexter and three 5-year-old superheroes known as the Powerpuff Girls.

These new characters are part of a series of seven-minute "shorts" created by both new and experienced animators at Hanna-Barbera. We headed over to Hanna-Barbera Studios to check it out. The first person we ran into was Joseph Barbera, one of the two guys who started it all.

D.A.: Why did you decide to have Dino star in your cartoon short?
J.B.: Dino is a character in his own right. He's got that crazy bark, and always comes in and jumps on Fred.

Pow-er action!

D.A.: When you started in animation, did someone give you a chance like the one your studio is giving young animators?
J.B.: (laughs) At the first place I took my first storyboard, they threw me out the door. What we're doing now—inviting a bunch of young people to produce their own ideas—is a very unusual step forward in the creative field.

Next we talked to Genndy Tartakovsky, the guy in charge of "Dexter's Laboratory."

D.A.: Tell us about "Dexter's Laboratory."
G.T.: Dexter's a kid with a huge laboratory in his room, and his older sister, Dee Dee, always comes in and messes with his inventions.

D.A.: Do you have a pesky sister?
G.T.: No, I have an older brother.

D.A.: So were you the pesky little one?
G.T.: Sometimes. I'd get into trouble, especially in class.

—Wendy Kalin and Kim Lockhart

Dexter tortures Dee Dee's doll.

When D.A.'s got the TV tuned to a jammin' basketball game, you can bet we've also got the radio on—at the same time—blastin' some killer tunes. Hey, call us crazy! So you can guess we were just too thrilled when we heard about "NBA Jam The Music Videos." We rushed home and cranked up our big-screen TV's supersonic stereo speakers way high. Then we sat back to enjoy some of our favorite basketball players' best moves set to some of our favorite singers' best songs.

Jammin' video!

Anfernee Hardaway, Shawn Kemp, Alonzo Mourning, Shaquille O'Neal, Chris Webber and Hakeem Olajuwon are just a few of the players showing off their sky-jump-kiss-the-rim-slam-it-in moves. The Spin Doctors, Joe Public, C+C Music Factory, Da Brat and Gloria Estefan sing the rockin' jams. It's a major slam dunk!

It's no secret that the hottest story in comics so far this year is the X-Men alternate time-line epic, "The Age of Apocalypse." Now, several characters from that story are flipping over into the 'real' Marvel Universe. The best news is that one of the "The Age of Apocalypse" books, X-Man, will continue. Issue five of X-Man will be in stores in May, issue six in June, and a new issue of the title will come out every month after that!

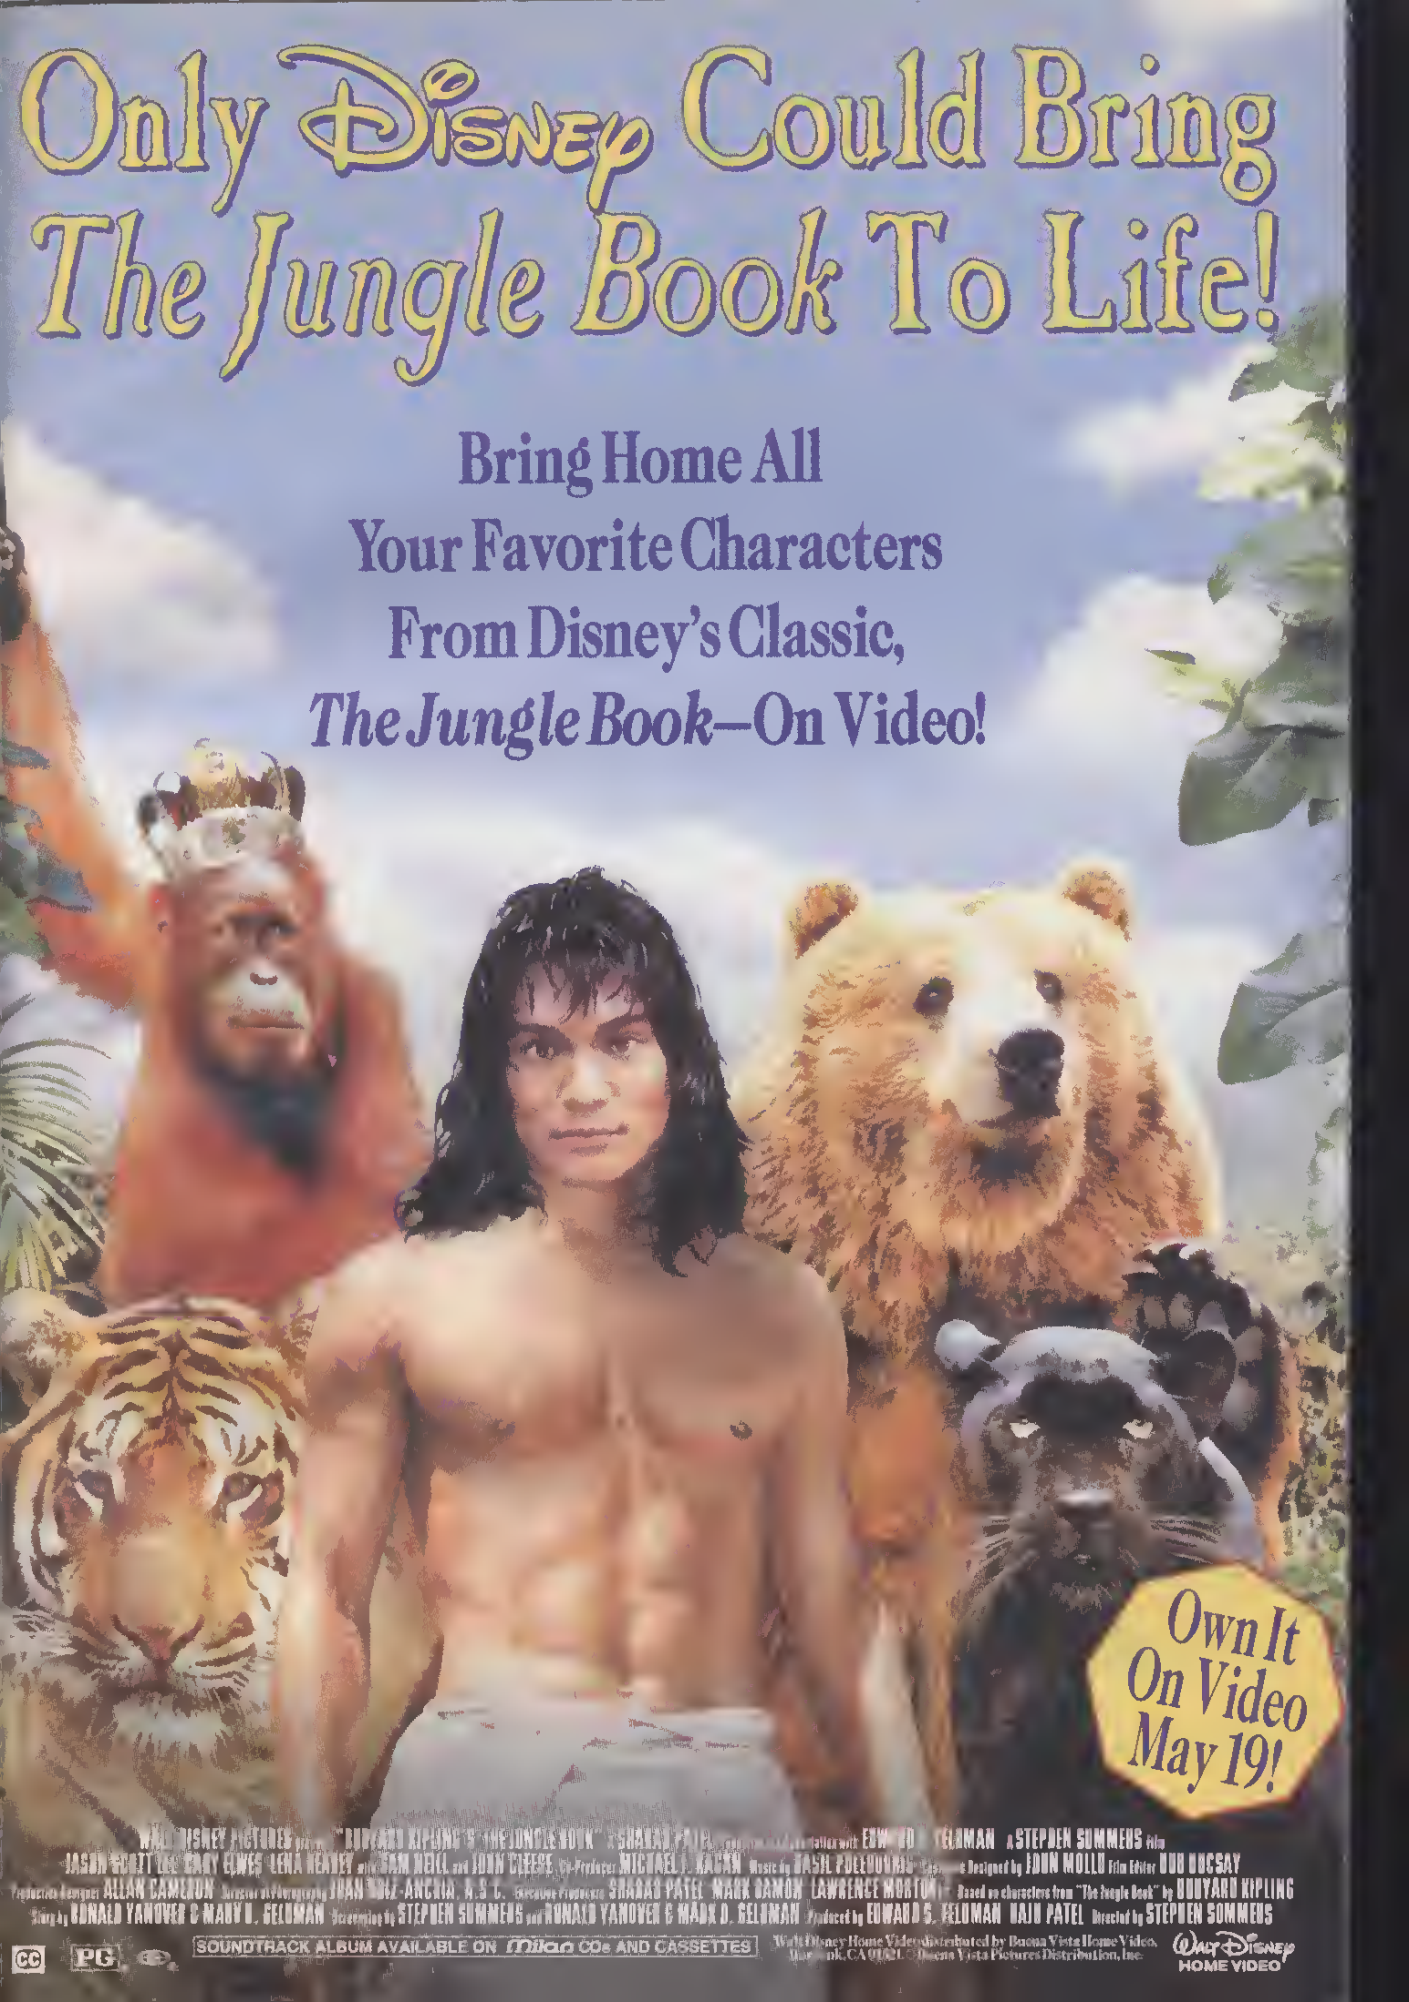

D.A. heard about some intense goings-on over at DC Comics. Chris Claremont, the writer who made the X-Men as popular as they are today, has a brand new series called Sovereign Seven. It features seven characters from another dimension who appear in the DC Universe. Claremont wants readers to experience all over again what it's like to meet DC's heroes and villains for the first time. If that's not enough, the art by Dwayne Turner is way cool!

New heroes on the block: Sovereign Seven.

Bad Boys

Bad boys, bad boys, whatcha gonna do? We're gonna send Batman after you! Meet the Riddler and Two-Face—two of the scariest villains this side of Gotham. Batman's up to his pointy ears battling these scoundrels in Batman Forever. Come a little closer, 'cause these gruesome guys are dying to be in your face! We've got one word: *uuuuggg-ly!

By Liz Smith

The Riddler

Played by Jim Carrey

THE LOOK: A skin-tight, glaw-in-the-dark, green badysuit adarned with questian marks. THE PAIN: The Riddler sends a series af clever riddles ta Batman, wha must figure aut the answers ta save Gatham City. It's na laughing matter. THE CANE: The Riddler's questian-mark-tipped gald cane paps apen ta reveal a small electranic cansale. He uses this ta apen lacked daars and secret panels when he's sneaking araund Gatham.

Two-Face

Played by Tommy Lee Jones

THE LOOK: Splitsville! The right side is all business in a dark suit and tie. The left side is wild—a tiger- and leopard-print suit with a mean-looking fuchsia, purple, and hot-pink face. THE PAIN: Former District Attorney Harvey Dent had an acid test done—on his face! *Ouch! HALF 'N' HALF: Two-Face has two girlfriends, one for each side of his personality. Sugar is played by Drew Barrymore (Boys on the Side), and Spice is played by Debi Mazar (Beethoven's 2nd).

Riddle This!

The Riddler's Jewel Box Riddle, closed.... and opened, revealing a miniature tennis court with tiny rackets swatting a little picture of Bruce Wayne back and forth. The Riddler's Pop-Up Card—inside is a riddle with a mini cityscape of Gotham and tiny battling knights. The Riddler's Batty Bomb, with little wings that really flap. It looks cute, but it's deadly.

Making Madmen

Master makeup artist Ve Neill tackles Batman's villains.

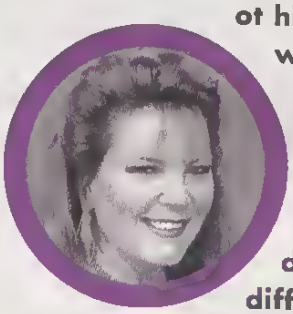

Never in a million years would we guess that sweet little ol' Mrs. Doubtfire has something in common with ugly, repulsive Two-Face, but she does—Ve Neill. Ve is the makeup designer and supervisor of Batman Forever. One of the best in the biz, she's won Academy Awards for Best Makeup for Mrs. Doubtfire, Beetlejuice and Ed Wood. She's also done the makeup for Batman Returns and Edward Scissorhands. Ve put down her makeup kit long enough to talk to us about making up Tammy Lee Jones and Jim Carrey, but we stayed at arm's length. We like our faces just the way they are, thank you very much.

D.A.: How did you do Tommy Lee's face?

V.N.: First, we made a foam-latex life mask of Tommy Lee. We split the face down the middle, and made templates, like stencils or cutouts, that are guidelines to fit in the foam-latex appliances. We'd draw the stencils on his face. We'd stick his hair down really tightly and put on a little shell that fit his head. We added the wig that was split down the middle, and glued his hair down. Then we applied the appliances. And then I drew veins on the side of his face, with iridescent cobalt-blue paint.

D.A.: We love the colors, especially the fuchsia. Why'd you choose fuchsia, hot-pink and purple?

V.N.: We used comic-book colors. We wanted him to be scary-looking, but we didn't want him to be so ugly that you couldn't look at him for the whole movie.

Ve Neill

D.A.: Once Tammy Lee had the makeup on, did he act different?

V.N.: Well, he'd make faces in the mirror, trying to look good and mean. He really had a good time, since he didn't have to be a serious bad guy, as in previous roles.

by Liz Smith

It took two hours to apply Two-Face's makeup every day. And the Riddler's makeup took even longer—three hours!

D.A.: How did you do Jim's mokeup?

V.N.: First, we bleoched the bock of Jim's hoir white. Then we slicked down his hoir with Gofquot, the bose of oll hoir sproy—o sticky, coromel-soft, reolly thick, soupy substonce. You hit it with o blow-dryer, ond it's Mr. Helmetl Thot hoir is not going to movel Then we odded the corol-colored Riddler wig. For his foce, the first thing wos to hove eyebrow covers—they moke the foce more rounded. We put o smooth, creomy, pole-pink-flesh-color bose on him. We used different types of point obove ond below the mosk. Then we pointed his eyes block. UV fluorescent green is on top of the mosk to make it "pop" when you see it on screen. We rimmed the top ond bottom of the mosk with iridescent gold powder—in some shots on screen, it mode his whole mosk light up.

D.A.: And whot did Jim do for the three hours eoch doy in the mokeup choir?

V.N.: He'd listen to music or reheorse his lines, becouse he hos o lot of lines in this movie. He wos chorming.

D.A.: Whot did Jim ond Tommy Lee soy when the transformotion wos complete?

V.N.: "Wow! This is o reolly nosty guy!"

D.A.: One lost question, obout yourself. Did you wont to be o mokeup ortist when you were o kid?

V.N.: As o kid, I mode up onybody who would let me do it. My mom just told me the other doy thot when I wos young I'd sit for hours drowing pictures, ond then I'd get up ond soy, "Now I hove to proctice for my Acodemy Awords speech." So I guess dreoms do come true!

CAPS-A-RAMA!

BY KIM LOCKHART

Whether you slam them or save them, collectible caps are everywhere these days. Comics characters, sports stars and funny faces can all be found on these collectibles, and new caps arrive daily. So with no further ado, here's D.A.'s guide to the basics of collecting and the hottest caps around.

COLLECTIBLE CHARACTERS Caps come with all sorts of designs and slogans, but the ones with comics characters on them are some of the coolest. Last year, SkyBox produced SkyCaps from artist Jim Lee (WildC.A.T.S, StormWatch) and sets with DC Comics characters like Superman, Batman and Wonder Woman. All these caps are now hard to find. The Simpsons set, released in January, and the new Batman Forever SkyCaps that came out in May are expected to sell out, too—so get yours now!

THE LATEST ON THE WORLD OF COLLECTIBLE CAPS

Other hot items: Flintstones caps from Pacific Rim Trading Caps; and Power Caps, featuring MMPR, from Collect-A-Card.

STACKS OF SPORTSTERS Sports fans have plenty of caps to add to their collections. Scoreboard/Classic Games, Inc. started releasing caps (they call them "Tonx") featuring the top draft picks from all the major sports last August. They were also the first company to release a Shaq cap, now one of the hottest sports caps around.

Another must-have sports cap comes from the World POG Federation and Coca Cola. Last summer, they teamed with a Canadian convenience store to give away Wayne Gretzky POGs with Coke purchases. The promotion was supposed to last for four weeks, but the caps were gone in seven days. Today, the 18-cap set is valued as high as $5,500 in the U.S.

THE SECRET ORIGIN OF POGS

The cap craze began in Hawaii in 1991, when a guidance counselor taught her students a game she used to play. They used the caps from bottles of Passion fruit-Orange-Guava juice—hence, the word POG. The game POG soon followed. The craze spread to the West Coast, and today it's going strong nationwide.

That leaves the pesky question of what to call 'em: Strictly speaking, the word "POG" applies only to caps made by the World POG Federation and the original juice caps. Otherwise, just call 'em caps.

FREE CAPS = VALUABLE CAPS

Many of the caps given away at special events and with kid's meals at your favorite fast-food joint are limited editions and craved by collectors. Others, like those given away at Disneyland and Knott's Berry Farm, come as sets and, if you don't separate them, are worth bucks. (The Disneyland caps are valued at $10 each.)

KEWL KINIS

Kinis, slammers, blasters, hitters, pounders... whatever you call them, you need one to play caps. We hear the metal ones are better for flipping tall stacks. Use the plastic ones when only a few caps are left in a pile.

Some of the hottest slammers include The Simpsons Hypno-Slammers, and discs with spider, yin-yang and poison symbols on them. Cap Pointer: Take your poison kini, and circle your opponent's stack. Some kids think the "power of the poison" puts a curse on the stack and keeps the caps from flipping over.

SLAMMIN' SUMMER FUN

Put your slomming skills to the test ond enter o cap tournament! Mojor cop monufocturers, os well os your locol card and comic-boak stores, hold tournoments where you con slom awoy ond win cool prizes.

GETTING STARTED: Arrive early ta register and pay your entry fee. In return for the small fee, yau usuolly get same free cops ond a regulation slommer, which everyone uses so thot oll competitars start out equal.

STACK 'EM UP: Taurnoment ploy is usually one-on-one. Some tournaments, like the anes argonized by the Warld POG Federation, hove contestonts play agaist the clock, while at others, winners ore determined by the best two aut of three gomes.

ant Battle

By Sheila De La Rosa

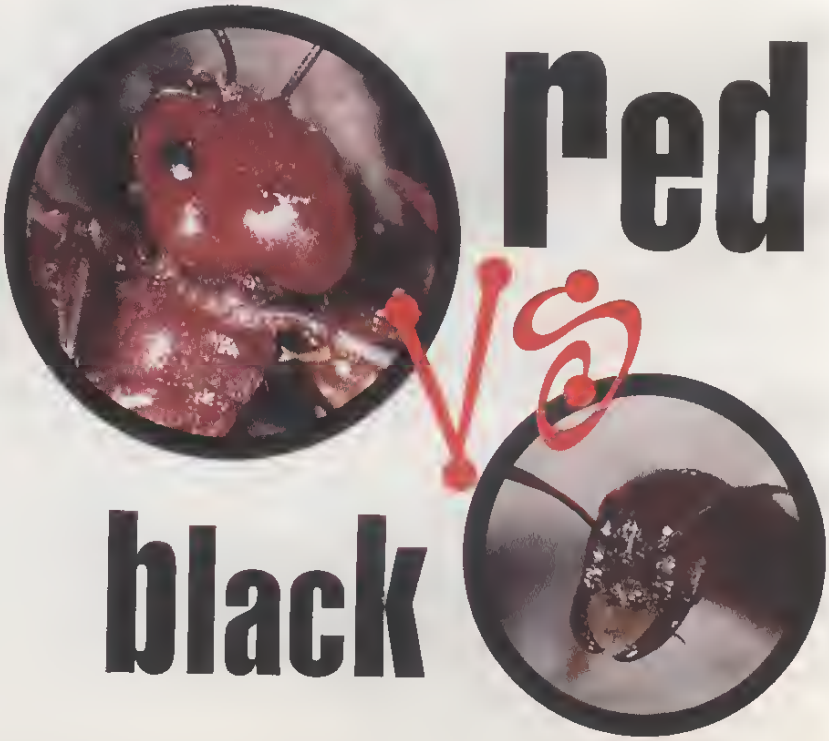

Who are the toughest warriors of them all? Green Berets? Special Forces? Ninjas? Not even close. The fiercest fighters in the world are crawling beneath your feet. They're called amazon ants. Named for an ancient tribe of fierce women warriors, these reddish-brown ants are found in Europe and the United States. And what makes these normally lazy, slow-moving ants high-step it into battle?

Simple. If they don't, they die.

Amazon ants have large, sickle-shaped jaws that close like barbecue tongs. These jaws are great for fighting enemies, but make everyday chores—like digging tunnels and keeping clean—pretty much impossible. Worse yet, the ants' tongues are so short that they can't eat. Unless a black ant slave puts food in the Amazon ant's mouth, the Amazon starves to death.

So when the Amazons notice that their slave ants are dying off, they plan a raid to snatch more black ant babies.

Here's what takes place when an army of Amazon ants makes a slave raid.

the attack!

The advance team takes off. A few ant spies slip away from the nest to track down the nearest black ant colony. Once the scouts have found a colony, they carefully study its entrances and general layout. Then they rush back to relay the information—via antennae touching—to the Amazon ant leaders.

The terminators get psyched. The ant leaders get their warriors in a terminating mood by swarming outside the nest and touching the soldiers' antennae. The leaders jerk their legs and raise and lower their abdomens, making faint crackling sounds—the Amazon army call to battle!

The march to the enemy camp begins. Small ant soldiers scurry in the middle of the pack, while larger ants run along the edges of the advancing Amazon troop.

The victims plan a defense. The peace-loving black ants soon realize they're in danger and barricade the entrances to their city. Black ant nursemaids rush to the nursery and grab as many ant babies as they can. They try to escape through secret exits into the grass.

The battle begins. The Amazon army quickly kills any black ant that tries to fight back or that won't hand over the babies. Jaws snapping, the ants exchange bites to their legs and heads and antennae. Snap! Severed heads fall to the floor. Rip! Legs are pulled off. Crunch! Abdomens are ripped into and torn off.

The black ants are outnumbered. Amazon ants flood the entrances of the city.

Operation Baby Snatch swings into action. The mission is almost complete. The Amazon army raiders head for the nurseries. Moments later, they emerge victorious, each carrying an unhatched black ant egg.

The war heroes return. The warriors return to their nest and are greeted with the insect version of a ticker-tape parade. Their own black slaves greet them and tend to the stolen babies. (Ants are born with the instinct to work hard in the nest they consider home; the black ants believe the Amazon ants are their own family.) Even though the Amazons have once again proven that they are great conquerors, they'd be history if the black ants ever went on strike.

Virtual Guitar—A Juiced-Up Joystick! "Thank you! Now, we'd like to introduce Aerosmith's newest member...you!"

No joke! Now you can rock out in one of the hottest bands around. All you need is your computer and the Virtual Guitar from Ahead, Inc.—the basis for three new interactive CD-ROM games. Welcome to West Feedback comes with a purple-and-yellow electric guitar that plugs into your PC, and a disk that takes you into a rock-'n'-roll world.

You start out playing songs in your bedroom. The CD plays vocals, drums and harmony. Strum along, and soon you'll be playing the lead melody. If you're feeling wild, you can add feedback and distortion.

If you play the riffs on cue, the payoff is a gig at a club. But if you blow it, counselor Skruggs pops in to tell you to look for another job.

Another game is Quest for Fame: Featuring Aerosmith. After working your way up, you play a tough joint called the Roadkill Grille. If you bomb, you're sent to cheesy lounge emcee Copa Costanza. But if you're a hit, Aerosmith will invite you to lay down some tracks in their recording studio. The band backs you up and gives you pointers.

Finally, you take the stage with Aerosmith at the Humongodome. It's all there—hot lights, raving fans, security guards. —John Cade

Card Shark

Summer's here, and things are heating up on the ice as the top hockey teams skate for the Stanley Cup. Meanwhile, on the court, the hoopsters are jamming through the NBA playoffs. While the playing seasons wind up, card collecting season is still going strong with these new sets.

Upper Deck NHL Hockey Series 2

In December we told you Upper Deck would release only one series of hockey cards this season. But with the season finally underway, they decided to create the 300-card Series 2. Included are recently traded players, rookies, and three subsets—1995 World Junior Championships, Upper Deck's 1994 World Tour (30 players who played in Europe or the minors during the lockout) and 15 Calder Candidates (one of these guys will be Rookie of the Year).

Topps Finest Basketball Series II

Last year's set was voted Best Basketball Card Product. This year's Series I sold out. And Series II is just out featuring 165 player cards and four chase sets. Card Shark's fave cards to chase? The Cornerstone players, including David Robinson, Charles Barkley and the Shaq-Man. One of these cards is inserted in every 24 packs and includes the 411 on why the player is so valuable to his team.

Air-Alert

He's the greatest basketball player who ever lived—and he's back where he belongs, on the basketball court. But remember when Michael Jordan played baseball? Upper Deck does—it was the only card company to include him in a baseball set this year. Look for Mike on both a regular card and an insert card in the Upper Deck Baseball Series 1 set. And if you find one, better hang on to it. Jordan is a hotter collectible now than ever before.

Next one to call them "cute" gets a fireball in the butt.

Who ordered the rump roast? That would be you, the minute you wrote Kirby's new buds off as harmless stuffed animals. Man, were you burned. This is Kirby's Dream Land 2 for Game Boy® and Super Game Boy®, and you're in the hot seat. Meet the owl that slings boomerang feathers. Shake fins with a fish that lets Kirby swallow under water. Kneel before the hamster that coughs up white-hot spheres of justice. "Cuddly"? Hardly. Good thing they're on your side. So hike up that asbestos underwear and watch your language.
